

Nuns Freed by French Troops.

Dominic Kennedy

The Times, June 29, 1994

A BRITISH nun was last night freed after a 10-week ordeal as soldiers occupied her convent in Rwanda.

Sister Susan McLean, 42, and her fellow missionaries were subjected nightly to mock executions and threatened with death if they offered sanctuary to desperate civilians.

She was among 43 nuns and orphans freed by French special forces who flew them to safety in Zaire yesterday.

The sisters were forced to turn away people begging for sanctuary, even though this meant condemning many to death in the war. The nuns are likely to be flown to Paris.