

Refugees from Burundi continue to stream into Rwanda

AFP, December 28, 1991

KIGALI, Dec 28 (AFP) - Refugees from Burundi are continuing to stream into neighbouring Rwanda where numbers have now reached 10,000, official sources said here Saturday.

Most are women and children from the Hutu tribe, fleeing fighting in northwestern Burundi.

About 100 new refugees were arriving daily and camps have been set up for them in Kivu and Nshili, in the south, and the Cyangugu region in the southwest of the country.
